NYLI Cushing MLP Premier Fund

In an effort to provide shareholders with stable monthly distributions, NYLI Cushing MLP Premier Fund pays a fixed distribution amount each month. However, during the course of a year, income earned by the Fund may fluctuate, causing the income earned in certain months to be less than the actual monthly distribution. In these cases, the monthly distribution is composed of both income and return of capital, as indicated by the estimates in the chart to the right.

Please note that under U.S. tax accounting rules, the exact amount of taxable and nontaxable distributions paid during the fiscal year, and whether or not an actual return of capital is necessary, can only be determined following the close of the calendar year, when applicable IRS tax rules are taken into account. You will receive a FORM 1099 DIV (if applicable) in February 2026 that will detail the actual amount of the taxable and nontaxable portion of distributions paid to you during 2025.
